Yesterday, as part of Stop SDSC-UK coalition, Quakers protested against an arms fair in Telford, Shropshire.

Six people, including three Quakers, have been charged following the protests:

Please join us for a talk by a leading expert on prisoners' rights and the Quaker Chaplain to HMP Wandsworth to be held at 6.30pm on Tuesday 5th December at Wandsworth Quaker Meeting House, 59 Wandsworth High Street, SW18 2PT.

Wandsworth Prison was recently in the headlines following the escape of a remand prisoner. The high-profile manhunt drew attention to the 'inhumane living conditions' and 'unsafe' environment experienced by inmates.

In Prison Reform: 200 years on from the Gaols Act Liz Bridge, Quaker Chaplain at HMP Wandsworth and founder of the Wandsworth Prison Welfare Trust, and Dr Steve Foster, a human rights specialist from Coventry University, will address the dilemmas in recognising and protecting prisoners' rights and propose practical ways to alleviate the conditions in HMP Wandsworth.

Entry to the event is free and open to all and refreshments will be provided.

Mine was the only family available for Children's Meeting today, so we went to visit Jani Evans. Jani was doing well, able to get around as long as she was careful. Leo did a brilliant job of deadheading dahlias, Hazel posed her crocheted imps around the garden (taking photos of them having adventures) and we gathered spinach and apples to take home. Time to make a crumble.

Why come to Quakers

Chay: Quaker, hacker

I come to Quaker meeting for the purpose of spiritual worship. The way Quakers practice this suits me well, being communal, open, and inherently supportive, and the explicitly non-dogmatic nature of Quakerism makes it very special to me.

Attending meeting maintains a sacred space in a busy and distracting life, which I have found beneficial and compelling.

Mona: Quaker, potter, mediator

I love the way we sit gathered together for worship. To me it's like an oasis of peace. I find it very restorative.

I value that any of us can be moved to speak or minister, that we are all equal. There are no priests or vicars. No-one tells us what to think or how to feel. On the contrary we are invited to think and decide for ourselves. I also value that Quakers welcome people of any faith or no faith.

I am a pacifist, and I'm drawn to the Quaker's history of active peacemaking.

Emma: Quaker, Climate Scientist, Mother

Every day at work I bear witness to how our planet's climate is changing. That would be emotionally tough even without the practical pressures of a hectic life of deadlines and business travel and conflicting priorities - all while also trying to be a good enough mother to my two teenagers. My Quaker faith grounds me. In a meeting for worship I connect spiritually and deeply with other Friends and can hear the still, small voice that says: 'Be still and know that I am'.

Catherine

I am a cautious person, who is prone to introspection and would like to gain some knowledge of Christianity, not yet acquired.

What to expect at a meeting for worship

On one never-to-be forgotten Sunday morning, I found myself one of a small company of silent worshippers .. To sit down in silence could at least pledge me to nothing; it might open to me (as it did that morning) the very gate of heaven.

Caroline E Stephen, 1890

Most local Quaker meetings hold a meeting for worship at 10.30am every Sunday morning. To find your local meeting click here. Some also hold mid week evening or lunch-time meetings.

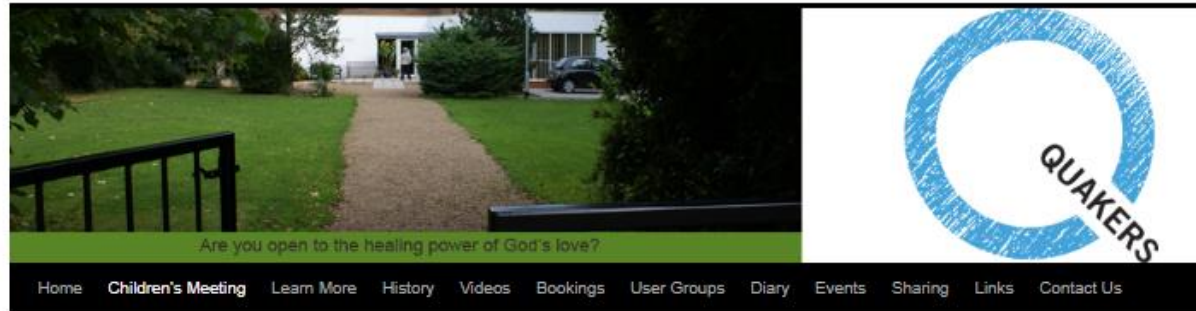

You will be welcomed at the door of the meeting house by a Friend (the term Quakers prefer to use for one another), who will be able to answer any questions you may have. You will enter a room with seats more or less in a circle, so that everyone can see one another. If there are already people in the room, they will be silent. They may smile at you, but they won't speak.

When the time is right, the door is closed, and the gathering starts to settle into stillness. The whole hour might pass in silence, apart from the usual shuffling and coughing, or individuals might feel moved to speak briefly, from their hearts. Someone will say 'thank you Friends' at the end of the hour.

You will then be invited to stay for tea and coffee, and you will find that, for people who choose to worship in silence, Quakers can be very chatty.
